

Did you know:

Pierce Brosnan - James Bond

After leaving school at 16, decided to become painter and began training in commercial illustration at Central Saint Martins College of Art and Design, in 1969 while in a drama workshop a fire eater was teaching women how to put flames across the chest and they had their tops off. So he thought he'd join in and learnt how to fire-eat a circus agent saw him busking and hired him for three years. He later trained as an actor at the Drama Centre in London.

Did you know:

Costermongers, were street sellers more commonly known as Barrow boys

Costermongers were notoriously competitive:

Respected "elder states people" in the costermonger community were elected as Pearly Kings and Queens to keep the peace between rival costermongers.

Did you know?

The Thames River

There are 37 major crossings over the Thames, including 33 bridges and 4 tunnels
It used to be incredibly dirty because it was where all waste from London ended up.

In 1858 the stench became so bad it was known as "The Great Stink"!

Now, believe it or not, the water is drinkable.

If you scooped a glass out of the river and left the silt to settle overnight, the water would be clean enough to drink!

We don't recommend you try it though...

One of the old sewer gas based lamp's in London

On steep Carting Lane near the Savoy Hotel is a Webb sewer gas lamp, the bulb of which was originally Illuminated by sewer gases (or, to be more direct, it's nickname was Farting Lane).

Until the 1950s, the bowel movements of Savoy Hotel guests lit up the street outside,

It was a highly successful early (if bizarre) form of recycling we guess.
